Our company is recognized once again for our leadership in diversity and inclusion, claiming the #6 spot in the DiversityInc's Top 50 Companies for Diversity. This is the second year in a row that MasterCard has stood among the top 10.

The DiversityInc Top 50 ("DITop50") is the leading assessment of diversity management in the United States and around the world. The rankings are determined by an objective methodology that calculates factors such as talent pipeline, equitable talent development (including commitments to mentorship and philanthropy), CEO/leadership commitment and supplier diversity. More than 1,000 companies competed for a place on the list this year.

"Earning a spot on the DITop50 proves that management is paying close attention to the needs of their primary constituents — employees, customers and other key stakeholders," says DiversityInc Founder and CEO Luke Visconti. "Companies with great reputations attract the best and most skilled employees who then create and deliver the best products and services. It's a virtuous cycle that enables public companies on the list to consistently outperform the major domestic stock market indices and privately held companies to surpass their peers."
